

More than 200 students turned up for the event. The sun was not quite so friendly that day with temperature ranging much over 38C but it did not dampen the spirit of freedom in students who thronged the venue way before the scheduled time. Thanks to school authorities that they provided us a nice and large air cooled auditorium to fight with the temperature of Rajasthan.

It was exactly 1 hour Workshop as school provided as this much time only. :(

Workshop started with the talk "Mozilla Firefox" given by me :) In start, I asked about the students about web browsers, which web browser they use? Most of the students said Microsoft Internet Explorer, then I talked about the Mozilla Firefox, about Mozilla, its mission.

I have translated some ways for the students to get involved in Mozilla, and invited them to visit Spread Firefox website, where they can find more information about the project and ways to contribute. We hope to get some of them to actually join us in the near future.

Students love the Firefox Goodies, though I have quite less amount of Goodies as I saved some Goodies from Firefox 3.5 Party. :D Every student want the Goodies, but I have few only. :(

So after over an hour of discussion and putting hungry minds at ease, it was finally over, but rather it was definitely a new beginning of a movement which was about to unfold and is unfolding everyday, with many minds aligned together to change the web around them.

Bad News, School authorities do not allow us to take the snaps of the Workshop, when I asked why? then, they said due to some reasons they won't be able to allow us to take the snaps of the auditorium with the students. But, although I have Feedback forms with me which I given to every student present there to fill up.

Thanks
